BISHOP ELLIOTT.

The following beautiful lines were suggested Elliott, D. D., the crest of which was a bullock and the motto : "For Labor-For Sacrifice."

The cream was of the kindlicst strain That ever meadow drew From sunlight and the Summer rain. From starlight and the dew! That left no stain in yonder vein Save Heaven's-the sapphire blue :

That gentleman we knew, The gentle and the true. The Knight, whose signet bore The Bullock-and no more! The quaint device of "Sacrifice," And "Labor," and, no more!

And matchless sweet the golden wheat That must have moulded him, A man complete, from head to feet, God-like, in soul and limb, That gave his gaze the Lion's blaze, His smiles—who smiles like him? Ah, tremulous and dim.

Thro' tears we think of him ; The Knight, whose signet bore The Bullock-and, no more, The quaint device by "Sacrifice, And "Labor" won of yore! Upon no statelier sight

The circling sun hath smiled.

Nor oak of loftier height Dropped shade so sweet and mild When love came down like light And happiness grew wild, The Sage, the little child, Peasant and Prince have smiled Around his knee, who bore The Bullock-and no more-The quaint device of "Sacrifice"

Which he shall wear no more!

For he is dead! Beneath the tread Of battle-in the roar That rent the sod, his face to God, He went and came no more! The fragrance of the path he trod In "Sacrifice," is o'er. Yet all the kindliest rays, Of all the knightliest days,

Kindle forevermore, Around the cross He bore. Around the quaint device, That our great Bishop wore!
